One of the secrets to shopping at Rite Aid is to watch their Video Rewards. Watch twenty super short commercials on their website, they give you a coupon for every item advertised in the commercials. (Don't worry, you get to choose which coupons to print.)

You can follow this link to the Rite Aid Videos site.

Read their sales paper! They offer more coupons right in their weekly advertisement. This goes for other stores too. A lot of people think if they have a store loyalty card, then the store doesn't offer paper coupons. This is wrong. Most stores will have coupons in their ads at least sometimes.

Read your coupons carefully. Check the expiration dates. You do not have to buy the pictured item on the coupon, but only what is actually stated on it.

Remember that getting sale items will increase your total savings! Use your Rite Aid card, and look for store coupons and manufacturer coupons to stack together. (Stacking is when you use a store coupon and a manufacturer coupon on one item.)

Sign up for Rite Aid's Single Check Rebates program yet? I love this program because I have never been good at remembering to mail in those rebate forms! Rite Aid makes it so easy for people like me.

Simply go to Rite Aid's rebates' website and enter your receipt information. That's it! If you qualify for a rebate, then they will mail you a check!

Rite Aid makes it easy to get rebates. Sign up at Rite Aid Rebates , then all you have to do is enter your receipt information online after shopping. Rite Aid will keep track of your rebates for you. If you bought any qualifying products, then they will mail you a check! It doesn't get any easier than that!

Rebates add up, so be sure and watch for them. Most places don't do all of the work for you, like Rite Aid does, so don't forget to send them out!

Rite Aid also gives back +UPRewards, so you get an even bigger discount! When these are added in, you can actually be paid to take the items you are purchasing out of their store!

+UPRewards are simply coupons that can be used to purchase practically anything in that store. (Be sure and check your store's policy. Some stores may exclude certain items.) They are coupons given back after you pay for your purchase. You can turn right around and use these rewards without leaving the store; in most cases.

I usually have everything in my cart and just do separate transactions using the proper coupons. (Names for these coupons given to you when you check out are: Catalinas, Register Rewards, +Up Rewards, Extra Bucks, etc.)

Scenario #1:

$9.99 - 12pk. Double rolls of Charmin toilet paper

$11.99 - Huggies diapers

$2.69 – shampoo

$2.69 – conditioner

$27.36 - total before coupons - $6.36 - after sales and coupons

Scenario #2:

Vitamins – on sale for $10.00

Use a $2.00 off manufacturer coupon, and a $1.00 store coupon to bring these vitamins down to $7.00.

But, it gets better because Rite Aid is offering a $10.00 +UPRewards on these vitamins.

Now, my OOP (out-of-pocket) is - $7.00, but I was given $10.00 back in Rewards.

So, I paid $7.00, got the vitamins, then was paid $10.00 because I took them!

I still have $10.00 I can spend at Rite Aid. When I add in coupons and sales, I get way more than $10.00 in merchandise!

There are a couple of things to remember concerning the register rewards. At Walgreen's you can't buy multiple items of the same product that is offering register rewards on one transaction because only one RR will print.

That is not the case at Rite Aid, however. If they are offering $3.00 +UpRewards on toothpaste, for instance, you can buy as many as the buying limit allows, and it will give you the rewards on however many you purchased.

You can also use that reward to turn around and purchase the same item and get another reward.

Be sure to carry a copy of Rite Aid's updated coupon policy? Make sure your shopping trip goes smoothly by printing out the stores' coupon policy and taking them with you. Also, be sure and check back with them often to be sure you don't miss any coupon policy revisions.
